

Non-Medical Home Supports

Client-Level Data Collection Guide

A network of community allies for older adults.

Welcome

Healthy Aging Alberta (HAA) and PolicyWise for Families & Children (PolicyWise) thank you for your effort to align your data collection activities with the common approach outlined in this Guide. We have collaborated with many community partners to arrive at this data collection approach. With this Data Collection Guide in hand, and with some help from HAA and PolicyWise along the way, we hope aligning your organization's data collection activities is as straightforward as possible.

Summary

- Collecting data in a consistent way helps us to tell a compelling story of impact.
- We ask that you adopt a short set of questions into your client assessment activities.
- We ask that you adopt the response options exactly as they are worded.
- There are five recommended steps you might follow in adopting the questions.
- You can receive support at any time from the Non-Medical Home Supports Project Manager.

Key Changes in this Version

- Clarification to who data should be collected from and when
- New approaches to data collection for short-term and one-time programs
- A new approach to data collection for transportation programs
- Updated response options for most Demographic questions
- Updated response options for most Outcome Measure
- A new Appendix that supports building service provider and client comfort with administration of the questions

1. Introduction

Guide Purpose

This guide aims to support Non-Medical Home Support (NMHS) organizations in the collection and reporting of qualitative and quantitative data to support funder requirements and program evaluation. The Data Collection Guide (DCG) supports organizations to measure outcomes achieved with older adult clients receiving non-medical home support programs and services across Alberta. Overall, the goal in creating this guide has been to make the data collection process as easy and efficient as possible for both clients and staff. By following the DCG and collecting data in a consistent way, the sector can use the information to tell a compelling story about the impact of non-medical home support programs and services. This is a living document that will be updated as needed.

Guide Development

This DCG was developed through a thoughtful process. One of the most important considerations has been balancing the needs for data collection with the challenges providers face in collecting this information. It is important for the data collection to not put undue stress or pressure on the provider – client relationship. Other considerations included:

- Alignment with HAA's Healthy Aging Framework.
- Alignment with the information community-based organizations already collect.
- Learnings from previous and ongoing HAA programmatic initiative evaluation activities.
- Further engagement with NMHS project representatives.

Intended Use and Users

The DCG is for program staff engaged in providing non-medical home supports to measure the impact their program is having on the clients they serve. This Guide is intended to support you to adapt a) the questions you already ask, b) the tools you use to collect information, and c) the time-points in which you use your data collection tools with your clients.

Where possible, the questions should be embedded in the program's current client assessment processes. The questions can be used to support the provider-client relationship by helping to enhance the provider's understanding of client's needs, the progress they are making on strengthening their determinants of health, and what the next steps in their support might be.

If your organization is delivering multiple programs using NMHS program funding, you will need to work through this guide to define the data collection approach for each of your programs. As you will see, the questions you chose to ask your participants may be different for each of your programs, and data collection looks different for different program types.

The Healthy Aging Framework

HAA's Healthy Aging Framework provides a shared language and way of understanding the work that CBSS organizations do. It is a tool for organizing the programs and services of seniors serving organizations to support an integrated, community-based, and person-centred approach to aging in Alberta. Two components of the Health Aging Framework have been integrated into the Evaluation Framework to ensure and demonstrate alignment between what community-based organizations do and how their impact is measured. These two components are Determinants of Health Aging and the Impact Areas, both of which are defined in Appendix 1. More information on the Healthy Aging Framework can be found on Healthy Aging CORE Alberta.

Evaluation Framework – Client Data Collection

As a practical tool, the client-level data collection evaluation framework (Appendix 2) assists programs in understanding which questions you should ask your clients, the type of assessment tool you should include the question in, and the frequency in which you should ask the questions to your clients.

2. Client-Level Data Collection

Overview

This section presents the questions you should ask, how frequently you should ask them, where to store the collected data, and the steps you might take to integrate the data collection approach into your current client assessment process.

Summary of Client-Level Data Collection by Program Types

To determine the appropriate client-level data collection approach, you will first need to classify your programs as either Comprehensive, Short-Term, One-Time, or Transportation. While Transportation programs are typically more straightforward to categorize, distinguishing between Comprehensive, Short-Term, and One-Time programs may be more challenging. Table 1 offers guidance to help you make this decision. Even with this framework, you might still find that a program could potentially fit into one category or another. Ultimately, you are encouraged to use your discretion when making the final classification.

More details are provided to support you in understanding and implementing the client-level data collection for each Program Type in the following sections.

	Program Type
	Comprehensive	Short-Term	One-Time
Description	<ul> <li>Service providers have multiple or ongoing interactions with clients over a medium- or long-term time period</li> <li>Programs and services that don't have a defined end date</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>Service providers have multiple interactions with clients over a short- term time period</li> <li>Programs and services that may be offered in a series and typically have a defined start and end date</li> </ul>	• Service providers have episodic, or limited one-time interactions with older adults, typically lasting less than one day
Examples	<ul><li>Snow and Mow</li><li>Case Management</li></ul>	<ul><li>6-Week Yoga Class</li><li>4-Week Art Class</li></ul>	<ul> <li>Tax filing clinic</li> <li>Afternoon Tea</li> <li>Navigation phone calls where an older adult is seeking information</li> </ul>

Table 1. Summary of Program Types in Client-Level Data Collection

Time-Points for Assessment	<ul><li>At Intake</li><li>Check-in (6-months)</li><li>At Closing/Exit</li></ul>	At the end of the program	• At the end of the interaction/event or program
Scope of Assessment	<ul> <li>Demographics</li> <li>Outcomes</li> <li>Program Improvement</li> </ul>	<ul><li>Demographics</li><li>Outcomes</li></ul>	<ul> <li>Number of participants</li> </ul>
Scope of Outcomes Collected	Comprehensive Programs adopt the prescribed measures in all of the following outcome categories: • Isolation and Loneliness • Physical Wellbeing • Mental Wellbeing • Quality of Life • Access to Services and Support • Hospital Use	Short-Term Programs choose at least two outcome measures you feel are most appropriate for your program. A short list of options is provided to select from. Options are provided across the outcome categories listed in the column to the left.	One-Time Programs are not required to collect outcome measures. If you chose to include outcomes measures in your data collection you are able to include them with your data submission. Feel free to choose the outcomes measure options we provide for Short-Term Programs.

Question Types and Time-Points for Data Collection by Program Type

Comprehensive Programs

The Comprehensive program assessment contains questions that are asked by program staff or volunteer to an older adult who is accessing a program or service. There are five types of questions to include in the assessment of comprehensive programs. These question types are Services Being Accessed, Demographics, Outcome Measures, Program Improvement, and Closing. The question types and the recommended time-points for collection for comprehensive programs are summarized below in Table 2.

Question Type	Type Description
Services Being Accessed	To understand the types of services you are providing to home supports clients	<ul><li>Intake</li><li>Exit</li></ul>
Demographics	To understand who you are serving and if there are differences in the impact your program has on people in different circumstances	• Intake
Outcome MeasuresTo understand your clients' needs, progress, and next steps, and to measure the impact of your program on client health and wellbeing		<ul> <li>Intake</li> <li>Check-in (6 months)</li> <li>Exit</li> </ul>

Table 2. Comprehensive D	)regram Ouestien	Tunnes and Time Dei	nto for Data Callection
Table 2: Comprehensive P	rogram Question	Types and time-Pol	nts for Data Collection

Program Improvement	To gather client feedback on how you might improve your program	•	Exit
Closing	To understand why your clients were unable to complete an exit assessment	•	Closing

Collecting Outcome Measures at three time points in the client's journey is the minimum number of time points required to be confident in determining a trend in a client's progress. The suggested time periods for collecting data in comprehensive programs are described in Table 3.

 Table 3. Comprehensive Program Data Collection Time-Point Descriptions

Time Period	Description
Intake	This information is collected during the beginning of the client's journey with your organization. Intake assessment questions can take multiple visits to complete. It is perfectly fine if the intake assessment isn't completed during the first visit with each client. Depending on individual client needs it may take up to 8 weeks or 3 contacts with a client to complete the assessment.
	Existing Clients: To establish baseline data for existing clients that your organization may be working with, intake forms should be completed for any existing clients who may be new to the program or service that you are delivering through this project.
Check-in Assessment (6 months)	This information can be collected through tools used for assessment and care planning. It is collected when the client has been receiving services or attending a program for a period of time. Many programs will complete multiple Check-in's with the same client.
	"Exit" is used to reflect when a provider is able to have a final meeting with the client. This information can be collected through tools used to support reflection with the client at the end of their journey with your program.
Exit*	Many clients accessing non-medical home support programs don't "stop" needing the program or service; therefore an "Exit" may not be used as frequently as a check-in for many programs.
Closing*	Closing * "Closing" is used to reflect when the provider is unable have a final meeting with the client. This information helps to understand, if known, why the program was unable to connect with the client to collect the "Exit" information. This is most often used if an individual has passed away, moved, or you have lost contact with them.
*Note: If a client were to end their journey with your program within three months after their 6- Month Assessment, there is no need to repeat the Outcomes Measures questions at Exit or Closing. However, the program improvement questions should still be asked. If the client's journey ends longer than three months after their 6-Month Assessment, the entire Exit or Closing Assessment should be completed.

The comprehensive assessment questions should be embedded in your program's current client assessment processes. This is not meant to be a stand-alone evaluation activity. In addition to helping your program and the sector understand our impact, the questions can be used to support the provider - client relationship by helping to enhance the provider's understanding of client needs, the progress clients are making on strengthening their determinants of health, and what the next steps in their care support might be. The questions to ask for comprehensive programs are broken out by time period and are described in Appendix 3. Printable copies of the assessment forms are available on SharePoint.

Short-Term Programs

The Short-Term program assessment is a survey that older adults are invited to complete. There are two types of questions to include in the assessment of short-term programs. These question types are Demographics and Outcome Measures. The question types and the recommended frequency of collection are summarized below in Table 4.

Question Type	Description	Time-Points
Services Being Accessed	To understand the services that are being accessed by a client	• At the end of the event, program, or interaction
Demographics	To understand who you are serving and if there are differences in the impact your program has on people in different circumstances	At the end of the program
Outcome Measures	To understand your clients' needs, progress, and next steps, and measure the program's impact on your clients' health and wellbeing	• At the end of the program

Table 4: Short-Term Program Question Types and Time-Points for Data Collection

The suggested time periods for collecting data in short-term programs are described in Table 5.

Table 5. Short-Term Program Data Collection Time-Point Descriptions

Time Period	Description
At the end of the program	This information is collected when the program ends. For example, you may collect this information at the last session of a 6-week program.

You are asked to select the two measures you find most appropriate for your program(s) from a set of options. The questions you can consider asking for short-term programs, along with a suggested survey template, can be found in Appendix 4. Editable copies of the survey template are available on SharePoint.

One-Time Programs

One-time programs do not have an assessment tool or survey that needs to be completed. Instead, there are two metrics that are captured for each one-time program, event, or interaction. The Service Being Accessed (program type) and the Number of Participants.

Metric	Description		Time-Point
Services Being Accessed	To understand the services that are being accessed by a client	•	At the end of the event, program, or interaction
Number of Participants	To understand how many clients are accessing the service.	•	At the end of the event, program, or interaction

Table 6: One-Time Program Data Question Types and Time-Points for Data Collection

The suggested time period for collecting data in one-time programs is described in Table 7.

Table 7. One-Time Program Data Collection Time-Period Descriptions

Time Period	Description
At the end of the program	This information is collected when the program, event, or interaction ends. For example, you may keep a tally of the number of navigation phone calls received by a senior's support worker over a one month time period.
	Service Accessed: Systems Navigation and Supported Referral Number of Participants: 28

A template to capture one-time program metrics can be found in Appendix 5 and in SharePoint.

Transportation Programs

Organizations that are providing transportation as one of their non-medical home supports have additional data that needs to be collected on a monthly basis for these programs. The purpose of collecting this data is to provide a more fulsome picture of the number of older adults being supported by Healthy Aging Alberta's Service Delivery Models (Non-Medical Home Supports and Provincial Assisted Transportation). The table below shows the data that needs to be captured. This data is entered into Salesforce using the Transportation data collection form. For more information on how to enter this data into Salesforce please refer to the Transportation Salesforce User guide.

Table 8. M	MHS Tra	ansportation:	Monthly	Data	Reporting
			wonuny	Data	Reporting

Category	Definition	Examples
Number of unique riders	Total number of unique riders (individuals) who accessed your transportation program in the month.	An individual may receive more than one ride from your organization in a month. Each individual is counted once.
Number of rides	Each individual transported is considered one ride.	A bus transporting 5 people would be considered 5 rides. A round trip is considered one ride.
Number of rides: in town	Rides within the town, municipality, or region considered to be local.

Number of rides: out of town	Rides outside the town, municipality, or region considered to be local.
Number of rides by reason: medical	Rides for all medical purposes.	Includes clinic, family doctor, hospital, pharmacy, specialist appointments, etc.
Number of rides by reason: non-medical	Rides for social purpose and basic needs.	Includes groceries, recreation programs, social gatherings, shopping, post office, etc.

Storing and Managing Collected Data

The client-level data that is collected should be entered into Salesforce. Salesforce is a cloudbased Client Record Management system. Healthy Aging Alberta is using Salesforce as the platform to collect and analyze the data received from partner organizations. The platform allows HAA to bring all partner data together in one place. With Salesforce you will be able to see all the data that you upload, make changes to individual client records, view dashboards of the data you have uploaded, and download reports containing your data. For further information on how to use Salesforce for your client-level data, please see the Home and Community Supports Salesforce User Guide.

3. Four Steps to Align your Client Assessment Approach

The Four Steps

Suggested here are four steps to follow to align your current data collection approach with the approach described in this guide. Although there are only four steps, this activity can be quite challenging for programs to complete. There are many decisions to make, and it is best to work through each step one at a time.

- 1. Review your existing data collection approach. Identify the Program Type and points of commonality with the data collection time points. Integrate the assessment questions into your existing tools and consider removing any overlapping questions and replacing them with an equivalent question provided in this guide.
- 2. Consider how you inform your clients about the data you need to collect. Review and if necessary, update the process you use to tell your clients about informed consent, privacy, and confidentiality.
  - Let clients know about the types of information that will be collected, who has access to it, and how it will be used. If they are a client in a Comprehensive Program, be up-front that they will be asked to provide assessment data multiple times during their journey with the program.
  - Use a consent process that is voluntary and explicit. Options for indicating consent can include providing a check-box for the participant to check, or by stating that completing the assessment is an indication that they consent to their information being used as described.

- Make sure clients know that choosing not to participate in data collection activities will not impact their ability to access any program services and supports.
- 3. Integrate the questions into your existing practice. If you have your own surveys, forms, or other data collection tools, you can review these and then edit by adding in the questions that you need to from the appendices for comprehensive programs (Appendix 3), short-term programs (Appendix 4), and one-time programs (Appendix 5). Each of these appendices also include a form template you can adopt and edit if that works better for you. Organizations with their own database or client data management system will want to consider adding the additional questions to their database. All client-level data for this project is collected and stored in Salesforce. Organizations without their own database will be able to access their data in Salesforce.
- 4. Train and support your staff through the change.
  - Consider communicating with staff about the importance of these changes for demonstrating the value of your services to your clients and program funders.
  - Consider any training that might be helpful for staff to feel more comfortable in asking the questions and responding to the answers provided by their clients. This includes understanding how answers to the questions can provide information that is helpful for understanding client needs.
    - See Appendix 6 for some tips on building client comfort with being asked the demographic, assessment, and program improvement questions.

Appendix 1: Healthy Aging Framework

The Healthy Aging Framework includes six Determinants of Health Aging, and 12 Impact Statements. More information on the Healthy Aging Framework can be found here.

Determinant of Healthy Aging	Impact Statements
	Increased ability to cope with challenges and life transitions
	Increased access to information, programs, services, and supports to manage the activities of daily living
Personal Wellbeing	Increased capacity to live independently by enhancing physical wellness
	Increased sense of meaning, purpose, and connection to the larger world
	Increased capacity to live independently by enhancing mental wellness
Physical and Mental Health	Increased capacity to live independently by enhancing physical wellness
	Increased engagement in creative pursuits and intellectually stimulating activities to keep the mind alert and interested
Physical Environment	Increased ability to reside in the place that is appropriate for one's circumstances
Safety and Security	Increased capacity to maintain personal safety, security, and the integrity of personal decisions as one ages, and personal circumstances change
	Increased inclusion and access for Indigenous, marginalized, racialized, and/or low-resources older adults
Social Environment and Engagement	Increased sense of meaning, purpose, and connection to the larger world
	Increased sense of purpose, belonging, and ability to cope with change and life transition
	Reduced risk of isolation and loneliness
	Increased ability to balance personal wellbeing with the role of a care partner
Social Support	Increased access to information, programs, services, and supports to manage activities of daily living

Table 1. Evaluation Framework Components

Component	Description
Evaluation Questions	The questions that help focus the evaluation related to the priorities and needs of its stakeholders.
Determinants of Healthy Aging	Identified in the Health Aging Framework – Six inter-related categories that identify the things that determine a person's ability to remain healthy as they age.
Impact Areas	Identified in the Health Aging Framework – The things the seniors serving sector think will change overall as a result of the work they do.
Indicators	The types of information the program can collect to understand if they are achieving their outcomes.
Program Type	The program types described in this Guide in Section 2 – Client- Level Data Collection.
Measures	The question that can be asked, or the data that can be collected, to assess progress on the indicators.
Data Source	The tool or activity that will be used to collect the measures.
Frequency	How often the tool or activity will be implemented.

Additional Questions requiring Clarifying Details

To ensure accurate data collection and reporting, we have provided below a set of comprehensive assessment questions that often result in inconsistent data and require clarification from organizations.

To follow a client on their journey and compare the information collected at intake, check-in, exit, or closing consistent Client ID's need to be used for each assessment completed. If your organization does not use Client ID's you will see a place in the form(s) to have one created based on an individual's First Name Initial, Last Name Initial, and Day of Birthdate.

Appendix 4: Short-Term Program Assessment Questions

This appendix includes the measures for you to chose from, and a sample client assessment form for short-term programs. Table 1 describes each of the measures available to you and you will need to select the two measures you feel are most appropriate for your program. You can access this table on our SharePoint site with notes on the alignment between each of the measures and the FCSS Outcomes Model here: Short-Term Program Outcomes. Make sure the measures you chose are from different indicators. Following the table, there is a sample form you can adopt if you don't have an existing data collection tool for this purpose. In addition to the outcomes measures you choose, you will need to include a small set of demographic questions which are included in the sample tool for your reference. You can download a file of this form to adapt for your purposes from our SharePoint here: Short-Term Program Assessment

Appendix 6: Tips for Developing Service Provider and Client Comfort with Questions

It can be difficult, or uncomfortable, for both the service provider and the client to work through the demographic, outcome, and program improvement questions. With some questions, we are asking clients to share personal and sensitive information. Here are a few tips for building service provider and client comfort:

- Consider taking time to explain the purpose of the assessment.
- Consider taking time to explain how important the information is for you in understanding the care or support they are looking for.
- Consider taking time to explain how important the information is to demonstrate the impact of the non-medical home supports program to secure additional funding to support more adults in the community.
- Consider balancing the need to first build a relationship and trust with asking the questions early in the client's engagement with the program. It is fine to indicate for any question that you feel it is not an appropriate time to ask the client the question.
- Consider integrating the questions into a more natural conversation and stopping to ask the specific questions when it makes sense.
- Prioritize making sure the first meeting does not feel rushed. Collecting responses to all questions may require multiple meetings.
- Expect that some clients might not want to complete the assessment on the specific day, or at all. And this is fine.
- Ensure clients know they can skip questions or stop at any time.

When asking questions from the guide, keep in mind that each client may respond differently based on their ability to answer. Sometimes clients will answer the assessment questions directly, while other times, the frontline staff may need to interpret their responses. Remind your staff to be flexible during the data collection process and encourage them to validate the assessment answers with clients whenever possible.
